

THE POCAHONTAS TIMES

Entered at the Postoffice at Marlinton, W. Va., as second class matter

CALVIN W. PRICE, EDITOR.

THURSDAY, MARCH 24, 1927

There used to be a covered bridge at Marlinton across the Greenbrier River. It was built about 1851, and it was the spot to Carebus who was guarding the treasury when great turnpike schemes were being carried out in Richmond. This was one of the bridges which came through the Civil War. Armies marched back and forth over the bridge and it figured in battles and retreats, but as it happened the critical occasions did not occur in time of flood except once, and that was during Averell's raid, and then they kindled a fire that my grandma Price was able to scatter.

Before it was torn down, I went across it one morning and saw an old Confed examining the walls. It was my very good friend James Schisler,

paign
ated dispat
up of ment.
water 300 me
ginia,
by a l
cavalry
ply wa
moved rebel a tonsvil
m. Th
Valley,
and fr
Valley
upper v Elk, at road de
of the souther
The roa
of a mil
Mounta
Then de camp t
had vac
Then da

Before it was torn down, I went across it one morning and saw an old Confed examining the walls. It was my very good friend James Schisler, of Greenbrier County. He said he was looking for the loop hole that he had used during the war.

As near as I can figure it out there was but one time that they had a battle here at Marlinton, during the Civil War, though it was for months at a time a fortified camp. And I never understood the nature of the controversy at that time, and I am pretty sure that none of the local people here on either side ever understood it. All they knew was that there were soldiers stationed at the bridge and suddenly the bottom was full of blue coats and and there was much firing and cavalry charging and an awful racket, and the Confederates retreated west and south, and the yankees went away.

Dr. George B. Moffett was here that day. He was the father of the president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the one that the umpire fined twenty-nine million dollars. That president said that the fine did not hurt so much as the attorney's fees that the company had to pay.

Dr. Moffett withdrew that day. In telling about it afterwards he said: "Well, I thought I had a fairly fleet

Mounta
Then do
camp t
had va
Then do
Elk to t across a Fork of
and ther
Old Fiel
an old In
I remem
he came chapel, f
about the 1888 to M
name did sides.

The ro
Fork of E and when the place
turns to e
of Gauley
ber barric defile the withdrew the waters ricade was trees were mile. I re Webster re evening o
were so m
that he co
impossible

president of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, the one that the umpire fined twenty-nine million dollars. That president said that the fine did not hurt so much as the attorney's fees that the company had to pay.

Dr. Moffett withdrew that day. In telling about it afterwards he said: "Well, I thought I had a fairly fleet horse, but with all those bullets flying around me, it seemed like Gizzard could not run at all."

Col. Gratton Miller was here that day. He told us children about it forty odd years ago. He said that he ran through the bridge and got so much dust in his lungs that he could not run and he dared not stop. "Why could you not stop?" "Because I had to run or get shot in the back." So it is to be presumed that he was moving rapidly.

But after so long a time I think I have been able to figure out what the fuss was about, and if you will bear with me as long as the tale unfolds, I will try to pass it on to you. That is the reason that I would rather write than speak. In writing I am not interrupted and I do not suffer from the sight of weariness.

The day that the yankees and confederates sowed the bottom with minie balls was January 3, 1862.

It will be remembered that the war broke out in 1861, and that for withdrew the water ricade wa trees were mile. I Webster evening were so n that he c impossible so that hi go forward time. So and left a guard the

He found C. Gay's s climbed to in that wa January 3

When Elk Mount could look Greenbrier looked dow

He could s camp of th

ed to win that part cupied by t pany. And was campe west side is. They plantation and a hick fold, I will try to pass it on to you. That is the reason that I would rather write than speak. In writing I am not interrupted and I do not suffer from the sight of weariness.

The day that the yankees and confederates sowed the bottom with minie balls was January 3, 1862.

It will be remembered that the war broke out in 1861, and that for a time Pocahontas county was the objective of both armies. That is the glorious year in the history of this county. The strength of the militia just before the war was six hundred and fifty, and yet before June 10th, over five hundred had entered the Confederate army from Pocahontas county. Robert E. Lee spent something like two months here in the summer of 1861, between Huntersville and Linwood. His exact whereabouts during that time can be traced by the letters that he wrote during his stay in this county.

There had been considerable fighting in Tygarts Valley as the confederates fell back before McClellan and Rosecrans. The federals dug in at Elkwater, and Lee fortified the passes through Valley Mountain and Middle Mountain. The federals had fortified White Top of Cheat Mountain on the Staunton & Parkersburg Turnpike. Lee tried to get Loring's

ed to w
that part cupled by pany. A
was camp
west side
is. They plantation
and a hic
ged the c

Marlins
against it
The old p dropped On top of part of en
On the ea
was a tra
the lengt
tenement
non styled oak where from the cations co
a distanc yards and dangerous

Webste
down El loyal vill
to Drenn
ridge int
Marlins
mouth o
the brid

the letters that he wrote during his stay in this county.

There had been considerable fighting in Tygarts Valley as the confederates fell back before McClellan and Rosecrans. The federals dug in at Elkwater, and Lee fortified the passes through Valley Mountain and Middle Mountain. The federals had fortified White Top of Cheat Mountain on the Staunton & Parkersburg Turnpike. Lee tried to get Loring's army across the Cheat country and they got lost in the wilderness. If he had got that army in behind the federals who were at Elkwater, it is to be presumed that he would have attacked in the front.

It is pretty plain reading between the lines that Lee was worried about not having word from Loring about whether he had got across or not, and sent Major John A. Washington with a handful of men to reconnoiter and see if he saw a confederate army marching up the river by some hook or crook. And Washington kept looking and looking in vain for such a force and got so near the fortifications in trying to discover the lost army that he was fired upon and killed.

Then Lee pulled up and left in the fall and the troops settled down for the winter. The federals were at Beverly, and Huttonsville. White

cations com
a distance
yards and
dangerous

Webster
down Elk
loyal village to Drennen ridge into Marlins Bo
mouth of the bridge to send his
the river galloped d river and land and t firing and Webster's
west of th ting in caused the them mad
the west si and west i gagement sulted in n
ing on eith

And it l
of the fed bridge and ville, six m
them som Huntersvil
Pocahontas
about four killed.

Then Lee pulled up and left in the fall and the troops settled down for the winter. The federals were at Beverly, and Huttonsville, White Top and Elkwater. The confederates were at Bartow, Top of Allegheny, Monterey, Huntersville and Marlins Bottom. On the Marlins Bottom and Huttonsville Turnpike the confederates had fallen back to this place and farther east. The federals had been stopped in two severe battles on the Staunton & Parkersburg Turnpike, one fought at the fording of the East Fork of Greenbrier River, on October 31, 1861, and one at the Top of Allegheny on December 13, 1861. In addition to that there had been two skirmishes at Travelers Repose, at that same ford, one October 3, 1861, and one December 12, 1861. We had six battles in that one year in Pocahontas County. That is counting the battle of January 3, 1862.

At Huttonsville that winter the 25th Ohio was camped, and with them was Major George Webster of that regiment. General Milroy was in command of the forces at that time and he conceived a plan to let the young major have a chance to lead a small army into the Greenbrier Valley by the way of the Old Field Fork of Elk to Marlins Bottom, it having been about two weeks since he found the upper road across the Greenbrier Valley blocked at Top of Allegheny.

Webster entered upon his cam-them some Huntersville Pocahontas

about four west. It ha during the left everyth
the confede
their head
tivities in t
Webster h
with fifty m
at the bar
Captain Wi
guard Green
When We

T. S. McN

McNEEL

Fire, Life
Automob
Bonds.

REAL

Town an only lic
County.

Yours,

MES

Farlin
matter

927 bridge

nbrier 1, and no was great carried one of gh the back
it fig-
at as it
ns did
t once,
s raid,
hat my tter.

I went
an old
It was
chisler, paigned with enthusiasm and he executed his orders with neatness and dispatch. His little army was made up of 400 soldiers from his own regiment. They marched by the Elk water fort and there he picked up 300 men from the Second West Virginia, and at Linwood he was joined by a little troop of 38 of Bracken's cavalry. He had loaded up his supply wagons and the army of 738 men moved south into the country of the rebel angels. He started from Huttonsville, December 31, 1861, at 1 p. m. The road follows the Tygarts Valley River to its head at Mingo, and from there it crosses over the Valley Mountain where it strikes the upper waters of the Dry Branch of Elk, at the postoffice of Mace. The road descends a little along the foot of the great Cheat Mountain whose southern end faces this little valley. The road then climbs again for part of a mile to the gap between Cheat Mountain and Middle Mountain. Then down the long slope by the camp that General Robert E. Lee had vacated some months before. The road then follows the Big Spring Branch of

of R
J. E
cont
of t
with the over
the plk
the ate
ma
the
side
cal
side
the
for plk
the
fro
the tho
V
H. spu
ates cree right
side

le said he le that he t out there
had a bat uring the or months
And I
ure of the
and I am the local ver under-was that ed at the ottom was there was rging and Confeder-outh, and was here her of the Oil Com-
that the e million said that ch as the pany had t day. In
he said:
airly fleet
ullets fly
ke Gizzard

Then down the Big Spring Branch of Elk to the Hugh Sharp place, then across a divide to the waters of Slaty Fork of Elk by L. D. Sharp's store, and then across another divide to the Old Field Fork of Elk, so called from an old Indianfield near Mary's Chapel I remember Dr. Lacy's dilemma when he came to change the name of this chapel, from Saint Mary's Chapel, about the time it was dedicated in 1888 to Mary's Chapel. The original name did not appeal to the old iron-

sides.
The route lay up the Old Field Fork of Elk for seven or eight miles and when Webster's army reached the place that Crooked Fork of Elk turns to encircle the upper reaches of Gauley River, they found the timber barricade cut into the narrow defile the fall before when Lee's army withdrew from the waters of Elk to the waters of Greenbrier. This barricade was a formidable one for the trees were all cut for more than a mile. I remember it very distinctly. Webster reached this blockade on the evening of January 2nd, and there were so many trees across the pike that he concluded that it would be impossible for him to cut them out so that his wagons could continue to go forward without losing too much

side
swi
ban
the son
the
tow ed t
cont
T
gage
hun dred
the
of in
In
ghan
filled
the I told his h scout move 5000 that of H
tom
his b
Th
to M
one r feder
sever
all th

million aid that ch as the
pany had

day. In
he said:
lry fleet
lets fly-
Gizzard

ere that about it
aid that d got so he could-
p. "Why
Because I
a back."
he was

I think I
ut what you will tale un-
n to you.
I would writing do not iness.

and con-
m with 62.
hat the
at for a
the obricade was a formidable one for the trees were all cut for more than a mile. I remember it very distinctly.

Webster reached this blockade on the evening of January 2nd, and there were so many trees across the pike that he concluded that it would be impossible for him to cut them out so that his wagons could continue to go forward without losing too much time. So he parked his wagons there and left a squadron of fifty men to guard them.

He found a path to the left, on J.
C. Gay's side of the blockade and he climbed to the top of the mountain in that way, early on the morning of January 3rd.

When Webster got to the top of Elk Mountain on the Gay place he could look down on the valley of the Greenbrier like what you may call him looked down on Italy from the Alps.
He could see the tents of the winter camp of the company who had started to winter on the Ingen Patch, that part of the city limits now occupied by the Union Tanning Company. Another company (Louisiana) was camped down the river on the west side where the old Price place is. They had cut every tree on the plantation of any size except a walnut and a hickory that the children begged the colonel to spare.

Marlins Bottom was fortified

5000 men that they
of Hunter tom, and his base,

The troc
to Monte
one man s federate l
seven wou
all that th

When V
tersville h
soul was house an houses w
come too
county sea
county wa
tion. It for most used the camp, an
Windows
left swing
me that t
life and dreariest observed.

A civil command ple had belonging
confeder
that if hi town wou

was camped down the river. They had cut every tree on the plantation of any size except a walnut and a hickory that the children begged the colonel to spare.

Marlins Bottom was fortified against invasion from the north. The old pike came up a little hill and dropped down to the bridge head. On top of this hill was a cannon. A part of embankment can still be seen. On the east of the river on the bank was a trench for rifle fire extending the length of the Tannery Row of tenement houses, with another cannon styled where there is now a big oak where the road topped the bank from the Marlin ford. These fortifications commanded the turnpike at a distance of some four hundred yards and made the road extremely dangerous as a passway.

Webster marched his command down Elk Mountain through the loyal village of Edray, across the flats to Drennen's Ridge, and down that ridge into the rebel settlement of Marlins Bottom. At or about the mouth of Stony Creek, a mile above the bridge head,

confe
that town

W
uary
foun
barre
beef
quar
baco

No
fire were

T his nigh havi
mar
mile wor

driv
was stro

I
ple
on
ma

the bridge, he stopped long enough to send his squad of cavalry across the river at the dry place, and they galloped down the east bank of the river and came out on the bottom land and to the Huntersville road, firing and acting outrageous, while Webster's infantry came down the west of the road. The cavalry cutting in behind the confederates caused them to stampede and most of them made it across the bridge to the west side and they all fled south and west into the woods. This engagement while a very noisy one resulted in no loss by death or wounding on either side.

And it hardly halted the advance of the federals. They crossed the bridge and advanced on Huntersville, six miles distant, driving before them some mounted confederates. Huntersville was the county seat of Pocahontas county, and was located about four miles from Camp Northwest. It had seen some big armies during the year 1861, and when Lee left everything in charge of Loring, the confederates ing on either side.

And it hardly halted the advance of the federals. They crossed the bridge and advanced on Huntersville, six miles distant, driving before them some mounted confederates. Huntersville ~~was~~ the county seat of Pocahontas county, and was located about four miles from Camp Northwest. It had seen some big armies during the year 1861, and when Lee left everything in charge of Loring, the confederates made Huntersville their headquarters for all their activities in this part of the county.

Webster had left Captain Johnson with fifty men to guard the wagons at the barricade. So now he left Captain Williams and fifty men to guard Greenbrier Bridge.

When Webster arrived at the ford

T. S. McNeel F. F. McLaughlin

McNEEL

McLAUGHLIN

e- of Knapps Creek at the place where d J. H. Buzzard lives he found the le confederate calvary on the south side l- of the creek in a level bottom field p with Knapps Creek on one side of - them and their line extending up and l over a hilly spur that jutted out into s the field, the line crossing the turnpike. Webster sent a detachment up the mountain to turn the confederate's right while the rest of his command marched upon their front and the firing became general on both sides. But the confederates perceiving that the federals on the north side of the creek were encircling them, the confederates fell back and formed a new line of battle across the pike and along Cummings Creek near the town. The pickets coming in from Marlins Bottom had reported the federal force to be about five thousand men.

Webster crossed at the ford at J.

bank of the creek, and the rest of the troops advanced forward. After some firing the confederates mounted their horses and retreated to the town, and as the federal troops entered the town from the west side, the confederates left by the the east side.

The number of confederates engaged at Huntersville was about four hundred regular cavalry, several hundred citizens of the county, recruited the day before, and two companies of infantry.

In the meantime, at Camp Allegheny, General Edward Johnson was filled with apprehension. This was the Kentucky general. An old lady told me that his ears flapped when his horse trotted. General Johnson's scouts had reported the forward movement of the federals as being 5000 men, and Johnson figured out that they would circle around by way of Huntersville, Frost, and Crabbottom, and detach him violently from his base, at Monterey.

men to tersville he found it deserted. Not a soul was living there. The courthouse and jail and stores, and houses were all empty. War had come too close to them, and the countyseat and largest town of the county was abandoned by its population. It remained in this condition for most of the war, and the soldiers used the Presbyterian church for a camp, and the houses were abused. Windows were broken and the doors left swinging, and an old timer told me that this the scene of much social life and gaity became one of the dreariest sights that he had ever observed.

A civilian came to the Webster command and told him that the people had moved out and taken their belongings. ~~from the~~ confederate general had told them that if his army was beaten, that the town would be burned.

When the town was captured January 3rd, large army supplies were found stored there. There were 350 barrels of flour, 150,000 pounds of beef, 30,000 pounds of salt, and

observed.

he had ever

Re

A civilian came to the Webster command and told him that the people had moved out and taken their confederate general had told them that if his army was beaten, that the town would be burned.

When the town was captured January 3rd, large army supplies were found stored there. There were 350 barrels of flour, 150,000 pounds of beef, 30,000 pounds of salt, and large quantities of sugar, coffee, rice, bacon and clothing.

Not being able to move anything, fire was set to the stores and they were destroyed.

Then Webster turned and marched his men back to his wagons that night in the sleet and driving rain, having fought two engagements, and marched something like twenty-eight miles on foot. That was a big days work. It took an hour and a half to drive the confedates a mile, and he was in Huntersville two hours destroying rebel stores.

It is no wonder that the local people did not

35

room build desir

25

two poult
ings good
the home
work
to fa

38

house
neces
orch

10 grazi

good
grazi

W

having fought two engagements, and marched something like twenty-eight miles on foot. That was a big days work. It took an hour and a half to drive the confedates a mile, and he was in Huntersville two hours destroying rebel stores.

It is no wonder that the local people did not understand the movements on that day, for the confederate commanders did not know what was happening to them. Webster's return march from Huntersville was what they had not counted on. They went on the basis that a big army was on the move, and looked for it to go almost any way but back. They figured on a march to the White Sulphur Springs, or on the Central Railroad at Millboro, or to Monterey.

But the little federal army marching so jaunty with their young commander had no notion of penetrating farther into the strongholds of the confederacy than any union army had reached up to that time, and he had swept the country clean as he went along and extricated his army with much neatness and dispatch. The 4th and 5th of January, were spent in marching.

most any way but back. They figured on a march to the White Sulphur Springs, or on the Central Railroad at Millboro, or to Monterey.

But the little federal army marching so jaunty with their young commander had no notion of penetrating farther into the strongholds of the confederacy than any union army had reached up to that time, and he had swept the country clean as he went along and extricated his army with much neatness and dispatch. The 4th and 5th of January, were spent in marching back from the barricade to Elkwater. On the night of the 5th they were in the fortifications at Elkwater, where they were royally entertained by the soldiers at that camp, and on the morning of the 6th they were in their old headquarters at Huttonsville. They had pulled out on a Tuesday and they got back the following Monday, and it was as fine a little campaign as every a set of youngsters put over. Major George Webster, of the 25th Regiment Ohio Volunteers, Commanding, Huntersville Expedition, was there and back again, with all his men and the 4th and 5th of January, the barricade in marching back from the night of the to Elkwater. On the night of the 5th they were in the fortifications at Elkwater, where they were royally entertained by the soldiers at that camp, and on the morning of the 6th they were in their old headquarters at Huttonsville. They had pulled out on a Tuesday and they got back the following Monday, and it was as fine a little campaign as every a set of youngsters put over. Major George Webster, of the 25th Regiment Ohio Volunteers, Commanding Huntersville Expedition, was there and back again, with all his men and horses intact, having carried fire and sword into a hostile country, and marched 102 miles in six days. And he threw a scare into the confederates that made their lines quiver from Huntersville to Winchester, and from Camp Allegheny to Staunton. Scouts rode headlong in every direction carrying dispatches. They seemed to

ATTENTION

Creek at the place where word was he found that cavalry on the south side in a level bottom field the Creek on one side of the line extending up and over that joined and into the line crossing the same place was a detachment of old to turn the confederate the rest of his com-and upon their front and made general on both the confederates per-the federate on the south creek were attacking federate full force and line of battle across the of Churchville Creek were the planks coming in the bottom had reported there to be about five equal at the foot of J and topped the hill ing that the confeder-able line on Churchville two companies to the the woods on the hill Braxton cavalry to the left towards the creek, and the rest of moved forward. After confederates mounted and retreated to the a federal troop enter-in the west side, the

 by the the east side.
 of confederates on-ville was about four cavalry, several hun-
 the county, recruited and two companies

me, at Camp Alle-Edward Johnson was extension. This was general. An old lady ears flapped when General Johnson's
 and the ground

have agreed on the strategy of the federal army as taking him and instead of the the that is actually con-

The same week of the Shenandoah expedition, however, the movement of Braxton, led the federal line. In that there a federal company on motion of under Captain Brown. The line was attacked by the confederates.
 The federal company retreated to Churchville and the confederates turned the line and took what was the line of the federal line. The Creek was then overpowered with a pursuit of the confederates continued to be improved military and killed one, and destroyed to show the Creek. On the 20th, Col. Johnson reported an expedition of two regiments and reported them to the federal in White oak county and killed twenty-four and burned twenty houses. This was about the time that Walker was operating in Shenandoah.

Before Walker reached part of Shenandoah the army was repulsed the state and stopped by the top of the mountains and with some firing, the state rights men against the union army.

The federal experience in Shenandoah county had the effect of a mirror of the military training together and organizing the county into an independent state with a government of its own, whose authority was recognized by a large number of the citizens for some years.

There was another episode of Martinsburg, April 22, 1862. Captain J. W. Marshall's company, of the 10th Virginia Cavalry, C. S. A., came upon a company of federal soldiers, identifying them, and chased them north towards Edge-

For Sale

